A Robbery

There was a robbery at Chai Wan Bank last Sunday. In the afternoon, a man went into the crowded bank to get money for groceries. All the customers lined up for their turn. Just when the man was about to leave, a robber stormed in and yelled if the man did not give him money, he would shoot him. The man refused and the robber shot the man in the chest! All the customers knelt down and trembled in fear. The robber took the money and ran away. A woman quickly called the police after the robber left.

Not long after, the police arrived at the crime scene. The man was lying on the floor unconsciously. The police sealed off the crime scene. They found a few footprints, some bloodstains, a few strands of hair and some fingerprints on the glass door by using a magnifying glass. They collected the hair and put them into an evidence bag to examine. Then, they interviewed a witness. The witness said that the man had scars on his face and arm. He also wore black clothes, trousers and blue gloves.

The police investigated the case for a few days. At last, the police found the suspect and sent him to Jail. The robber was ashamed of himself.
