

Jack's Birthday Gift

Jack received a birthday gift from his mother last week. He put it on his desk and opened the present. He was on cloud nine as he got an electronic pet. It was a new invention from ABC company.

Jack named the electronic cat Bobo. He spent a great deal of time hanging out with Bobo. It was multifunctional. It could play board games and ball games with Jack. It was such a good company to Jack.

One day, when Jack was doing his Maths homework, he was confused and annoyed because he could not solve the difficult questions. Suddenly, Bobo jumped onto the table and told Jack that it could help him with his homework. He provided all the answers to Jack. From that day, Jack relied on Bobo to do his homework.

Time passed. The exam was coming. Jack didn't study for the exam. He kept playing with his cat. The next day, Jack had a Maths exam. He was very nervous. He didn't know the answer. Jack thought for a long time, but he still couldn't write the correct answers. He was sad and regretted. Two days later, Jack failed in the exam. His mom was angry with him, so Jack promised his mum he would do revision in the coming exam.